BULLOCK-POLLITT

Arthur E. Pollitt and Jennie C. Bullock, both of Orangoburg, were united in marriage at the Christian Church parsonage by Rev. A. F. Stahl at noon on Wednesday in the presence of the following persons: Mrs. Jennie Bullock and Mrs. Sallie Echart the mother and sister of the bride, Miss Elizabeth Pollitt, the groom's sister and Henry Franklin Jolly.

THE LONGEST DAY

Today is the longest day of the year of 1917. The earth will begin to swing away from the sun from now on until December 21. Although we are the closest possible to the sun today the thermometer would not prove it.

Mrs. Sam Porter and family have removed from the apartment over the Barkley Shoe Store to East Fourth street near Limestone.

The Maysville Model Creamery is paying 40c a pound for butterfat this week.

GO TO RUGGLES

Now that it has been definitely decided that we are to have no Chautauqua this year, and nothing special scheduled for the Fourth of July, why not celebrate the Fourth in a safe and sane way by attending the big Old Settler's reunion and picnic at Ruggles Campgrounds? This place is a favorite resort for hundreds of Maysville people, and in these times of the automobile, making the trip out there a matter of a very short time, we can think of no better way to celebrate our Nation's birthday than attending this big picnic. There will be hundreds of people there from Mason, Lewis and Fleming counties, and elsewhere too. A finer place to meet friends and enjoy a day of real pleasure could not be found anywhere. And then there will be some fine speaking. Hon. J. N. Kehoe will be the leading orator of the day. His reputation as an entertaining and forceful speaker is too well known to need further comment. Rev. S. K. Hunt who is also to speak, will be a new man at Ruggles, but his work in Maysville as a preacher and pastor for nearly a year has been such as will commend him to any audience. Those who hear him will be delighted as well as helped. Patriotic music of all kinds will be sung and played by the choir and orchestra of the Third Street M. E. Church with Howard Trent as pianist. One thing more is needed to make the day a success, and that is plenty to eat. Let everyone bring a basket full of good eats. Come early and stay late and we bespeak for one and all the happiest Fourth of their lives.

Mr. Thomas H. Gray of Covington was in the city yesterday.

BEAUTIFUL NUPTIALS

A lovely wedding was that which took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Holmes in Augusta, Wednesday at high noon when their daughter, Miss Anne, was united in marriage by the Baptist minister, Rev. Shanks to Mr. DeWitt Glinn. The rooms were handsomely decorated with roses, magnolias and ferns. Mrs. Charles Steen, violinist; Misses Jennie Stroube, pianist, and Louise Higgins, cousin of the bride, as voice, rendered "O Promise Me" effectively. At the appointed hour the bride and groom entered to the strains of Loengrin's prelude by Miss Sara Holmes, maid of honor, who was fairy like in white lace and pink sweet peas, along with Mr. Bedford Hagan, best man and preceding them Miss Marjorie Holmes of beauty in blue and pink silk with pink peas. Miss Anne wore a stylish novelty tan and blue traveling suit, hat to match and carried white peas and was so attractive, where beneath an archedway of magnolias the solemn knot was tied. An elaborate luncheon of salad course, ices, cakes and bonbons were served. The couple uniquely staid off by auto for a ten days' trip East. The young couple is very popular in Augusta; the bride being a most lovable young woman, the groom is a prosperous farmer. The out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Glinn and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Glinn of Cincinnati, Mrs. Terrie of Hyde Park, Cincinnati, Mrs. Harvey, Walnut Hills, Mrs. Edna W. Core, and Mrs. G. W. Geisel, Maysville, Mrs. Higgins and daughter, Miss Louise, Deaver, Colo., and Mrs. Hattie Belle Dunbar of Cincinnati.

WET AND DRY ELECTION

At a meeting of the City Council of Ripley on last Friday night the petition signed by 216 citizens of the town asking for a vote on the wet and dry proposition was presented before that body and rejected. However the dry forces of the place had circulated another petition securing the names of 184 voters. This petition was received by the council and a resolution adopted ordering a special election to determine by ballot whether the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage shall be prohibited within the limits of the corporation. The election is set for Friday, July 13, and needless to say it will be watched with the greatest of interest by Maysville people. The outcome of the election is very much in doubt, we understand, as sentiment in the town is about equally divided.

THANKS FOR THE INVITATION
The Fleming Gazette says: Maysville will have no chautauqua this year owing to a misunderstanding with the Lincoln Chautauqua Company. Maysville people are cordially invited to come up and attend the Flemingsburg chautauqua. It's a nice ride by motor and Flemingsburg will be glad to have her Maysville neighbors here. Come.

AUTO BUS STATION

Will Be Discussed in a Meeting of the Prominent Business Men and the Drivers of Trucks in and out of the City.

Following up the meeting held on Friday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce the merchants in that organization are called by the trade extension division to hear the reports of the committees appointed last week who have since made their investigations and have recommendations to place before the merchants for their action.

At the meeting last Friday the merchants decided that the two most important matters towards boosting trade in Maysville was a system whereby the auto buses carrying customers and packages in and out of Maysville be regulated for the benefit both of the merchants and the bus lines. Accordingly, a committee composed of Messrs. C. E. Dietrich, F. L. Hendrickson, and H. C. Grimsley was appointed with instructions to interview the bus drivers and arrange a meeting of them together with the committee would present tentative plans and suggestions for the establishment of an auto bus station where packages could be sent by the merchants for delivery to the trucks just before departure, and where the passengers could go to catch the outgoing trucks.

At the meeting to be held at the Chamber of Commerce this morning at eleven o'clock. It is proposed to arrange a schedule, convenient to the bus lines, which schedule will be printed by the Chamber of Commerce and distributed to the merchants. Every merchant in the Chamber of Commerce is earnestly requested to make it a point to be present at the meeting this morning and all drivers operating trucks in and out of Maysville are also requested to be present. The committee appointed by the merchants on good roads, which committee held a meeting on Tuesday afternoon, will report back this morning to the meeting of the merchants.

Mr. Crit Leach, an old Maysville boy, now a prominent grain merchant of New Orleans, La., has been visiting friends in this city this week, leaving this morning for prominent points in the middle west in the country.

TIME FOR AMERICA TO WAKE UP!

The Wall Street Journal quotes a Boston banker as saying: Don't let anyone arouse your enthusiasm by the bland statement that 80,000 New England patriots have subscribed to the Liberty Loan. That sounds like a whole lot of bond buyers. And it would be if they were buying private corporation securities. But 80,000 bond buyers in New England is just 1.13 per cent of the population. In other words one in about every seventy-five people has taken a bond. In England, when the last loan was floated, one in every eight persons took a bond. We are sound asleep. We have not even started to rub our eyes to wake up. What is going to arouse our people? Will it be some greater disaster, the shadow of some appalling catastrophe? There are no Zeppelins to recruit American dollars for the Liberty Loan. But there must be a remedy found even if the Federal Reserve banks have to take their money, and, by taking it, practically paralyze the loaning power of the banks and thereby slow up business.

We all know that the country has not awakened to the seriousness and to the realities of this war. The country has not taken it to heart as it should. It has not counted the cost in men and money. It has not recognized that into every home there will come some touch of sorrow, and we are afraid that until the fighting blood of the nation has been aroused by many disasters we will be, like the people of England, slow to realize the desperate nature of the enemy and the magnitude of the fight which we must make. We shall wake up some time soon, but we may perchance not wake up until so late that we shall have to pay in a heavier toll than would be necessary the fearful cost of this war.

HOPELESS SUITS

Springfield-Republican says: Suits to test the constitutionality of conscription, already started in at least two Western States, are hopeless. They are based on the Thirteenth Amendment forbidding slavery or "involuntary servitude." The Civil War, which made the Thirteenth Amendment possible, saw the utilization of the draft, both in the North and the South; and the power to draft was never questioned from the foundation of the government down to the present war with Germany. If the courts should decide that the draft were now unconstitutional, they would declare it ineffectual in adopting the anti-slavery amendment the nation unwittingly deprived its government of one of the most elementary attributes of sovereignty in national self-defense—an absurd conclusion to reach. The simple issue has hitherto not been directly presented to the Federal Courts for the reason that the draft has never been used since the Civil War ended and the Thirteenth Amendment was adopted.

Helps Sick Women

Cardui, the woman's tonic, helped Mrs. William Eversole, of Hazel Patch, Ky. Read what she writes: "I had a general breaking-down of my health. I was in bed for weeks, unable to get up. I had such a weakness and dizziness, and the pains were very severe. A friend told me I had tried everything else, why not Cardui? I did, and soon saw it was helping me. After 12 bottles, I am strong and well."

TAKE

CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Do you feel weak, dizzy, worn-out? Is your lack of good health caused from any of the complaints so common to women? Then why not give Cardui a trial? It should surely do for you what it has done for so many thousands of other women who suffered—it should help you back to health.

Ask some lady friend who has taken Cardui. She will tell you how it helped her. Try Cardui.

May Seek Aid of National Defense Council to Enforce Cancellation of Certain Passenger Trains.

Huntington, W. Va., June 19.—That the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad company may seek aid of the National Defense Council to enforce cancellation of certain passenger trains denied by the state public service commission following the railroad's formal petition and protests of interested citizens and organizations, became known yesterday.

A conference was held at White Sulphur Springs yesterday by high officials of the railroad with regard to the situation, and it was an open secret here that the officials had under consideration an appeal to the defense council. The only other recourse the railroad would have, should it decide to contest the ruling of the commission, would be the suits circuit courts, and thence possibly to the supreme court.

An Alabama railroad recently carried to the supreme court a state commission's adverse ruling with regard to cancellation of passenger trains.

The railroad officials take the position that the cancellation of passenger trains is not undertaken at the railroad's sole volition but at the behest of the national council of defense, which issued a general instruction through the railway commission of five, asking all railroads of the country to reduce the expedition of wartime freight business. The Huntington Chamber of Commerce, among other organizations which protested against the proposed cutting off of certain Chesapeake & Ohio trains, took the position that the abolition of certain trains would injure rather than aid the movement of coal from which the Chesapeake & Ohio derives its chief revenue.

The Rev. S. B. Alderson of Topeka, Kan., left yesterday for Charleston, W. Va., to visit his daughter, having been here to attend the Centennial celebration of the Presbyterian Church.

Mr. George Collins of Seymour, Ia., and Dr. George J. Collins of West Point, Neb., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Fred Williams of West Second street.

CRYING FOR HELP

Lots of It in Maysville But Daily Growing Less.

The kidneys often cry for help. Not another organ in the whole body more delicately constructed. Not one more important to health. The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous. There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Headache is one of the frequent indications of kidney trouble. It is often the kidney's cry for help.

Read what Doan's Kidney Pills have done for overworked kidneys. Head what Doan's have done for Maysville people.

Mrs. E. Sphar, E. Second and Walnut Sts., Maysville, says: "Whenever I have heard anyone complain of their kidneys, I have never seen Doan's Kidney Pills fail to help them. I have been greatly benefited by them myself. At times, my back has ached and I have suffered from lameness through the small of my back. When I have been in that way, I have used a box or so of Doan's Kidney Pills, which I get at Chasler's Drug Store. They have always quickly removed the trouble."

Mrs. Sphar is only one of many Maysville people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills. If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you—don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS, the same that Mrs. Sphar had, the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores. INTERESTING PAPER READ BY MR. JOHN E. BLAINE AT THE CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION OF THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

I want to thank you Mr. Barbour and friends for your invitation to be present on this happy occasion. I have always held the Maysville Church in deepest love and veneration, because it contained the friends whom I esteemed the most, and because the most intimate and sacred things of my life are associated with it; from infancy to matured manhood it was the only church home I knew; it was here that I took first public step in Christian life; it was within its walls I was given the bride of my youth, who has been my constant and loyal companion for 46 years and here too, our infant boys and only daughter received the Sacred Ordinance of Baptism.

It was from before its pulpit that mother and father and brothers and sisters and life long friends were carried to their last resting place; peace to their memories, and though my membership has for very proper reasons been in other churches for many years, I have through all the years carried in my heart the sentiment that my home church was in Maysville and I rejoice in being with you today.

I congratulate you sir, and the officers and members of the Maysville church on this happy occasion, for with the close of a century of service, your church takes rank with the few that claim that great distinction.

With the succession of pastors, men of power, of earnest convictions, of purity of life, and enthusiasm in Christ's work, the banner of Presbyterianism has been upheld, defended and carried forward; the city and community has been enriched and lifted to a higher standard of living and the Maysville Church has been made a tower of strength throughout the state, and in the great assembly of the church, of which it is a part. I congratulate you, for the good work that has been accomplished, and for the good work that is in progress; and I congratulate you too, on the splendid men and women who through all their lives, from one generation to another have stood bravely, as a bulwark of strength for the Lord against the mighty.

As I stand in your midst tonight my heart is filled with emotion as I recall memories of the past, of Maysville, the beautiful city under the bill; of its men and women, and boys and girls, among whom, (though absent many years) the most of the years of my life were spent.

I wander through its streets with their myriad of strange faces; note many new buildings and the changes of the years and turn to the unchanging hills, that once bounded my boyish vision.

I visit long cherished viewpoints and resting places; and overlooking the city and its surroundings, see the unchanged majestic river, winding its way as of old, between picturesque shores; rich and beautiful valleys, flanking it on North and South, and the stately hills, of which I know none grander and more beautiful, standing as great sentinels guarding the approaches to the city. I look on the roofs below, on the familiar spires and public buildings, on the homes, and here and there and all about, locate the homes that were radiant with joy and happiness; homes that speak of the mothers and fathers, and sons and daughters whose companionship was my joy and delight, and there too my own father's home, that speaks of an affectionate father, of a mother's devotion, of the flush of young health, of an unbroken circle of sisters and brothers, of the home affection and my heart finds expression in Longfellow's song:

Often I think of the beautiful town,
That is seated by the Sea;
Often in thoughts go up and down
The pleasant streets of the dear old town,
And my youth comes back to me,
And a voice of a lapland song
Is haunting my memory still;
A boy's will is the wind's will
And the thoughts of youth, long, long thoughts.

I can see the breezy domes of groves,
The shadows of beautiful woods:

And the friendships old, and the early loves,
Come back with a Sabbath song as of dove,
In quiet neighborhoods.

I remember the gleams and glooms
that dart
Across the school boy's brain;
The song and the silence in the heart
That in part are prophecies and in part
Are longings wild and vain.

Years have mellowed and made sweet the memories of boyish days, the days when "A boy's will, is the wind's will," but nevertheless, happy, careless days when life, like a story book, is full of sunshine and gladness, each day sufficient unto itself, and no care for the morrow, except perhaps, the hirsute task of preparing lessons. It is of this period I wish to speak and then too of the following days of youth with its larger life, its more important concerns, its increasing love for companionship and its dreams and visions of the great world beyond with its wonders, its fascinations and its possibilities; and its thoughts become long, long thoughts.

It is of these tender periods in my own life, and even before I was counted a member of this beloved church, that I speak to you of memories of the Maysville Presbyterian Church, and of its consecrated men and women; doubtless, many with us tonight, had their part in the activities of that day, but much the larger number present must depend upon history and tradition to tell them of parents and friends who left them the rich legacy of lives well spent.

The period of which I speak, precedes the pastorates of our three friends, Dr. McCampbell, Dr. Alderson and Dr. Barbour, who are with us tonight, and whom I honor for their faithfulness to the traditions of our fathers for the purity of their lives, and for their influence for good, especially in this church and in the City of Maysville.

Memory carries me through the activities of long, busy years, and I stand a young boy in the streets of Maysville, gazing in wonder and awe at the great church that had been dedicated to the worship of God, but a few years before; how could there be a greater? Immense in size; towering over all other buildings in the city; and then its graceful, tapering spire, of which there was none like it, topped by a giant gilded hand, the index finger extended and penetrating, as it appears to the boyish gaze, into the very heavens above, and visible to all men, far and near; and then its big wonderful bell, that rang out its call to service in rich melodious tones, that caused the echoes to sing with joy.

It is the Sunday School hour, and entering the wide open doors of the beautiful and sacred building I am at once attracted by the melody of little children's voices; it comes from the partly open door of the Infant Class room, and without looking in, I picture the innocent little group, surrounding consecrated Mother Scudler, whose long, tender and loving service was an inspiration to many a young life; in fresh childish voices they sing in tones, clear and sweet, as the warbling of birds on a spring morning:

Little drops of water, little grains of sand,
Make the mighty ocean, And the beautiful land.
And the little moments; Humble though they be
Make the mighty ages of Eternity.

Passing on I enter the main room and join my class. The room is not particularly attractive; the seats are stiff, and are permanently attached to the floor; the walls are bare, except the solid wall opposite the entrance, on which are hanging maps, illustrating the Missionary Journeys of the great Apostle. The superintendent opens the school with prayer, singing, and reading, of a scripture lesson, and to this day the form of Judge Lewis Collins stands before me as he reads his favorite lesson:

"And he showed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb."

With a buzz of voices recitations begia; the committing to memory of the Commandments, and the shorter catechism is imperative; committing Bible verses is encouraged and three prizes, usually books, given to the scholars who during the year committed to memory and recited to their teachers the largest number of verses. I will remember one occasion, when my dear sister, Ella and Eliza, and their little brother, were called to the Superintendent's desk to receive the three prizes of the year, and of my oldest sister explaining at home, how embarrassed she was because of the Blaine children carrying off all the prizes.

Recitations ended, books from the library are obtained by all who want them. The Sunday School paper, "The Visitor" is distributed and after a song the school is dismissed.

Church service follows shortly after, and the teachers and many of the scholars, myself among them, remain and attend the larger service; entering the auditorium, I see in the pulpit the familiar form of Rev. Robert C. Grundy, the beloved pastor and friend, who for twenty-two years, gave his strength, his love and his service to the Maysville Church.

The pews with their rich crimson upholstery are filled with quietly dressed, familiar forms, and eager and expectant faces await the beginning of the service. An air of purity, and sweetness and quiet peace fills the house, as with the fragrance of the morning dew.

I lift my eyes to the organ loft and at the organ sits that accomplished scholar and gentleman, George W. Blatterman, and about him the members of the choir, prominent among whom we see the talented singers, Miss Lucy Rand and Mr. Michael Ryan; to the right and to the left, the gallery seats occupied by family servants and, faithful colored men and women members of the church, and for whom seats in the main body of the church are provided on Communion Sunday. To the right of the pulpit are seated the young lady boarders from the Rand and Richeson Seminary with their note books, prepared to take notes of the sermon, which are to be written out and handed to their teachers the next morning. On the opposite side are the young men students who instead of notes on the sermon are required to prepare and deliver speeches.

Before the pulpit and extending from wall to wall is the general congregation, and sitting in their accustomed and long occupied seats are the men and women, whose faces had become familiar to me as a boy, by seeing them in my father's house and in the church; men and women whom I came to know intimately in later years, and whom I counted it a privilege to know and love as friends; men and women whose names are indelibly linked with the history of Maysville and with the history of Presbyterian Church.

Here sits the family of William Hodge, and there the family of William Huston, and there the family of Andrew M. January and his son-in-law, Robert A. Coobran, and there the families of my mother's brothers, Charles B. Coons and his sweet sister, Hester, and Rev. George W. Coons, who having retired from the ministry, because of ill health made his home in Maysville, and the families of my own father, Samuel L. Blaine and James Barbour and his wife's mother, Mrs. Foster and Henry Walter and Judge Lewis Collins, and his son, Richard H. Collins and George W. Blatterman and Jacob W. Rand and Christian Schultz and his daughters, Mrs. Julia Chenoweth and Mrs. John B. Poyntz and Mrs. Charles B. Pearson and William Richeson, and Joseph Brodick and Dr. W. H. McGranaghan, and his wife's mother, Mrs. Jana Ellis, and Michael Ryan and John Schuler, and John H. Richeson and his sister, Miss Mollie, and Thomas J. Pickett, and W. H. Wadsworth and Francis T. Hord and James Smith and Henry H. Cox, and Whitman Wood and Dr. William Wood and Joseph Wallingford and John G. Hickman and his sister, Mrs. Ransom and my own relatives, John B. Harbun and his son-in-law, Joseph Boyd, J. James Wood and Miss Lottio Wood and Dr. S. M. Cartmell and Hamilton Gray and Charles B. Ryan, and Mrs. Mae Lee and Dr. John P. Blister and Mrs. Mackey, and Mrs. Peera and John Ravencraft, and Mrs. Ashton and her daughter, Julia, and George Arthur and Reuben King, and Miss Ary Ann Turner and Mrs. Pemberton and Mrs. Linn; and Paul Hoeftich and Dr. Ambrose Seaton, and Thomas B. Matthews and Mrs. Dawson and Henry Ayres and Dr. Samuel K. Sharpe and his son, John R. Sharpe and a host of others whose names are written not only in the book of the Maysville Presbyterian Church but also in the Lamb's book of life, for these were faithful until death.

Many, very many of these were permitted to continue their activities in the church, through the years of which this paper treats, succeeding Dr. Grundy's ministry, and these were strengthened by the families of their sons and daughters and other consecrated men and women among whom we mention the families of Thomas M. Green and Dr. G. W. Martin and Thomas J. Throop, and Henry E. Pogue and Dr. W. S. Moore and W. B. Matthews and Hiram H. Collins and Mrs. Barr, and Mrs. Thomas Wells, and W. H. Wallingford and Mr. Simpson and George H. Taylor and Josiah Wilson and numerous others whose names as well as those previously mentioned are held in loving remembrance.

A noble company of earnest and faithful men and women true and loyal to their families, their friends and their church, their lives were a living testimony of their faith in the living God and in the saving grace of Jesus Christ, his well beloved son; they were ever ready to respond to the call of duty. They were leaders in affairs of church and state; they commanded the respect of the community in which they lived; they stood for law and order, for righteousness, for all that was good and pure and beautiful in men; they lived lives of service, the richness of which cannot be told in words.

In all these days the social life of the church was beautiful beyond comparison. A spirit of brotherhood prevailed, and religion and social life went hand in hand. Societies that brought all the congregation together were frequently held in the homes of officers and members, and occasionally in the home of the pastor, and as Maysville was noted for its many and interesting visitors, these were often the occasion of welcome and rejoicings.

The women were famous for their strawberry festivity and oyster suppers and every year these events were eagerly looked forward to, as regularly as the seasons came.

Occasionally, fairs for the sale of fancy work and articles, the work of our mothers and sisters were held, and what a busy time it was. Our mothers for days before, planning, directing and often preparing with their own hands, dishes they would not trust to the servants; most beautiful cakes, home made candies, rich confections and all kinds of good things; and the servants busy making bread and rolls and tea biscuits, and baking fine old Kentucky hams, preparing salads and all the other accessories for a feast; washing the china and glass, putting an extra polish on the silver, overhauling the table linen, and preparing the lamps, and Eliza Chinn and Fidelity Fant, our faithful and efficient sextons, busy getting tables and chairs and stoves and necessary cooking utensils, for mind you, the affairs were usually held in the Niagara or Neptune Engine Company's hall, the largest public halls in the city and they were utterly destitute of the furnishings needed. And then the decoration of the hall, in which the boys and girls, much to their delight, had a part, and when all complete, what a scene of splendor. Evergreens, flowers, mistletoe, and holly, weighted down with their rich furnishings and fragrant with delightful odors from the "good things that mothers and sisters and their help had created."

It was a time of joy and happiness, old and young sweethearts, and lads and lassies met and mingled and ate together as members of a great family, and how delicious it all was, and what an evening of delight.

Primarily intended to raise money for the Women's Society, the event whether largely profitable or not, had served to kindle the fires and keep alive the spirit of brotherhood and love, and our mothers were happy.

To the women of my boyhood church, constant in endeavor, untiring in effort, hopeful, cheerful, charitable, abounding in all good works to our mothers, beautiful loving inspiring, with low love and reverence, tuned with all grace, my heart would sing their praise, and for inspiration I turn to the poet, one who lived long with you as pastor and friend, my own relative, Rev. George W. Coons, and quote:

O woman, trustful, hopeful to the end
Unfailing, faithful, true and full of love,
"As mother, sister, daughter, wife and friend,
Thou peerless art.
"Thy smiles, thy love, thy helpful hand and voice
"A peaceful home can in a desert make.
"As heads of violets exhale their sweets
"And cast them on the balmy air at
"When the bright sun beyond the Western sky
"Retires, and stars are seen a blaze with light.
"So faithful women cast an atmosphere
"Of sweetest sanctity o'er all the world,
"And light its darkness with her smiles and tears.

The Maysville church through its intelligent membership, and the wise counsel of its efficient session, was peculiarly fortunate in its choice of pastors.

Dr. Grundy, as before stated, was my boyhood pastor and had been the pastor many years before I was born. He was a most attractive man personally, a devoted and successful pastor, a eloquent and impressive preacher, a man of strong convictions, fearless in speech, and tender and loving in character as a woman; he was respected and loved by old and young, and yet because of exceptions taken by one of Maysville's citizens to some pulpit remarks, was the victim of a dastardly street attack that left him bruised and bleeding from a cut on his face that left its indelible mark. An act that was, I am glad to say, condemned by all righteous Maysville. My father was his devoted friend, and admirer, and as I learn from the record in the family Bible, Dr. Grundy officiated at his wedding necessitating in those days, a trip to Lexington and return by stage or private conveyance.

He was a frequent and most welcome visitor in my father's house and I speak of him with most affectionate remembrance.

After a two years absence with my father's family in a Western city, having advanced from boyhood to youth, I returned to find Dr. Grundy gone and another in his place. Rev. John A. McClung who followed Dr. Grundy was a very unequal and striking personality, as I remember him, quite tall and thin with swarthy complexion and high cheek bones. He was fond of outdoors and much given to walking.

Dr. McClung was very scholarly, brilliant in thought, a fluent speaker and his ministry, earnest, intelligent and fruitful, was, within two years, to the great grief of the church, cut short by his tragic death in Niagara river.

He was succeeded by Rev. W. T. McElroy who remained but little more than one year, and who distinguished himself by using as a text for his three-well sermon, a quotation from the song of Deborah and Barak, "Curse Ye Meror, Curse Ye Bitterly the Inhabitants Thereof."

Of the personality and ministry of Rev. R. L. Brock I have but a hazy recollection. His pastorate of about three years covered the exciting period of the Civil War 1862 to 1864 and during which time I was absent from the city for one year.

Following him, within a reasonably short period of time, Rev. J. E. Spillman was installed as pastor. Surely, many of those before me, remember the ministry of Dr. Spillman and the tragic death of his estimable wife, while he was pastor of the Maysville church. He was a preacher of great ability, a genial and cultivated Christian gentleman, and a devoted pastor.

Upon his retirement the Rev. George W. Coons served as stated supply, if I am not mistaken, until the selection of Rev. George W. McCampbell as pastor.

In speaking of these revered gentlemen, pastors of the church, I must not be ungrateful of the services of others, who were held in high esteem by the Maysville church.

I mention with loving memory, Rev. John H. Condit of the Washington church; Rev. John M. Worrall, Covington church; Rev. J. P. Hendricks, Flemingsburg church; Mr. Caldwell, Sharpsburg; Rev. Robert P. Brank, Lexington church, whose son I recently had the pleasure of meeting and bearing preach in Savannah; Rev. E. J. Breckinridge, Rev. J. L. McKee and Rev. Edward I. Humphrey, all men distinguished in the church, all men who occasionally visited the Maysville church, and several of whom, on many occasions gave of their eloquence and power in protracted meetings that were fruitful occasions, and usually resulted in the accession of many new members to the church.

With a further quotation from Longfellow's song, I bring this paper to a close:

There are things of which I may not speak,
There are dreams that cannot die:
There are thoughts that make the strong heart weak
And bring a pallor into the cheek
And a mist before the eye.

Strange to me are the faces I meet,
When I visit the dear old town;
But the native air is pure and sweet
And the trees that o'er shadow each well known street
As they balance up and down,
Are singing the beautiful song,
Are sighing and whispering still.

And the beautiful woods are fresh and fair,
And with joy that is almost pain
My heart goes back to wander there
And among the dreams of the days that were,
I find my lost youth again.
And the strange and beautiful song,
The groves are repeating it still,
A boy's will is the wind's will,
And the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts.
